Report

to next year.

We conducted a teaching series on personal evangelism at JC May 9-12. Attendance and participation was good as we trained folks to share the greatest story ever told in a fresh way. We also took time to revisit some other ways that have been tried and proven through the years.

With the stress of dates and deadlines it was a blessing to gather with some of the brothers for a men's retreat at Park Lake May 13-15. We ate, fished, prayed, had service, and did I mention, we ate! It was a wonderful time and we thank Bro. Matthew Blankenship for facilitating this event and the brethren for coming!

May 18-23 was spring revival at the Afton (OH) Wesleyan Church. The Lord so faithfully moved, lining the altar every night. Souls were saved and helped in various ways as folks were seeking the perfect will of God for their lives. We want to thank Pastor Bender for sharing his pulpit with us and all the Afton congregation for their fellowship, food, and financial support. We especially want to recognize Bro. Mark and Sis. Sara Teeter, dear friends of ours, that open their homes to us whenever we're there.

The last revival of the month was held at the Omega C.C.C.U., May 24-29. Oh, how God moved among us, saving several teenagers and reviving the saints. We want to thank Pastor & Sis. Roosa and the entire Omega congregation for allowing us this privilege. We also want to thank those that aided us with food, financial blessings, and literature for the Bible and Christian Literature drive.

In addition to these services were our wonderful home services at James Chapel, our monthly visits to the local nursing homes, and a highway clean-up day. God is good! Praise His name!

amount of information and capabilities at our fingertips, it is so easy to get caught up in surfing the web. With e-mails, facebook, and online shopping, a few minutes can turn to hours. Use the internet as a tool, not a toy, and it can prove to be a help and not a hindrance.

Reading Novels When There's Work to be Done-
I love to read a good Christian novel, but I put reading my Bible and my other duties first. Don't be tempted to read a novel during the late hours of the night, only to wake up too tired to cope with your family during the day. There is a time and place for everything.

Self-Pity and Worry-
Thinking about yourself is a deadly time-waster. You can't adequately nurture your children or bless others while you use all your emotional energy on yourself. "Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus:" (Php. 2:4,5).

Lack of Organization-
My motto is "a place for everything and everything in its place". It is good to teach children at a young age the importance of putting things away when they're finished. If each member of the family does their part, it makes it easier on Mom.

Lack of Discipline-
If you say you're going to do something, stick to it! Follow things through. Do what has to be done, not just what you feel like doing. This develops character.

Trying to do Everything at Once-
Tackle one job at a time and finish it completely, then start another. Clean one room at a time or weed one section of the flower bed. You don't have to get everything done in a day.

Inability to Say No-
Stay focused. Don't get sidetracked. Your top priorities are to be a Christian, wife, mother, and homemaker. Everything else must come after.

Too Much Stuff-
The more "stuff" you have in the home, the more you have to keep clean. The more gadgets and ornaments you have, the more you have to dust. The more toys your children have the more you will have to pick up. By keeping things to a minimum you can relieve many of your daily duties and also guard against excessiveness.

I hope this list will help you discover ways of using your time wisely. Remember, life is short.
